MAK Flu Season Precautions III

March 14, 2020

To Parents and Students,

In addition to the previous two publications about MAK's precautions for our students, we started today to take temperatures of all who come into the building. The state does not require this step but suggests that anyone with a temperature of 101 or higher go home, so we are following that suggestion.

According to the State's proclamation and the rules of Early Education and Care, a division of the MA state government, we are not encouraged to close. Gatherings of 250 or more are disallowed, and 100 is suggested. We are well below 100 at any one time, so we are not only allowed to remain open but reminded that the current risk in this area for our activity with our precautions is very low. We will continue to monitor both the conditions, laws, and suggestions of MA and the EEC to keep our families safe.

We are adding children's classes during the school closings to our Wednesday morning schedule, to further create social distancing.

Finally, we have altered the curriculum for the duration of the emergency to allow for more social distancing during class by adding more traditional structure and alignment of students during class.

Sincerely,

Anne McCoy
